Abstract. Research on the Implementation of the Qualifications of God’s Servants According to Acts 6: 3 In the Pentecostal Church of Surabaya City Secretariat, wanted to find out the whereabouts of God’s servants in the study according to Acts 6: 3, especially in the scope of the Pentecostal Church Surabaya City Tabernacle. Specifically chapter 6: 3, explains the essence of the solution to the problem, namely the selection of 7 servants of God. Obviously Dr. Luke reveals the criteria of God’s servant who can be the solution to the problems that occur. At present, most Churches of God are more concerned with the physical buildings, facilities and infrastructure of the Church rather than thinking about how to get God’s servants who can answer the needs of the congregation and the challenges of the times. What is even more concerning is that many of the Churches of God are procuring servants of God who only look at the side that can increase the image and popularity of the Church. So often the Church is

INTRODUCTION

Humans as perpetrators and users of the results of modernization that has been dominated by sin, the negative impact of modernization is inevitable. To overcome this need sensitivity and alertness to the effects of these impacts.

Regarding the kinds of negative impacts arising from modernization, Chris Marantika stated that at least five negative impacts have arisen. [1] Namely:

The first negative impact is liberalism. This understanding emphasizes absolute habits (Liberty) in all areas of life. So the gospel of salvation in the Lord Jesus Christ is considered ancient, irrelevant and obsolete.

The second negative impact is understanding individualism. This understanding emphasizes individual benefits above mutual interests and benefits. Unhealthy competition and even cheating are practiced without considering the negative impact on others. Exploitation, manipulation, etc., are actions that are considered reasonable, in the interests of their own affordable. These things are justified on the pretext that humans are absolutely free creatures.

The third negative impact is materialism. The business goal is directed at providing maximum material benefits in various ways to obtain them. All success criteria are measured in terms of material success.

The fourth negative impact is the over-reliance on human ability. Advances in science and technology tempt humans to depend on humans and the modern tools they have. Reason, prayer, and miracles are excluded as unimportant things.

The fifth negative impact is the existence of human exploitation of humans. The habit of dealing with machine tools makes people lose respect for each other. Instead of using things and loving humans, modern humans are more like each other and love things. Human value is exchanged for the value of goods or money.

Chris Marantika's statement is a real thing in this era. Everyone can see and feel it. This reality matches what the Word of God revealed in 2 Timothy 3: 1-5, which says:

"Know that in the last days difficult times will come. Human will love himself and become slave for money. They will brag and boast, they will become vilification, they will rebel against parents and do not know thank you, do not care about religion, do not love, do not want to make peace, do not make people bad, can not curb themselves, fierce, do not like the good, likes to betray, do not think long, pretend to know, obey the passions rather than obey God. Outwardly they perform worship they are, but in essence they deny their power. Stay away from them.”[2]

The negative effects of the results of modernization are not enough to know but a solution needs to be found. This requires the role of the church to pay attention to fundamental horizontal issues such as justice, control and respect for life as God's grace and attention to those who are weak and powerless. Therefore it is necessary for the Church to concretize it and intensify Church programs that are horizontal and aimed out for the interests of the community.[3] To answer and provide solutions to problems that are happening due to the negative impact of modernization, the authors pour in the paper.

Literally ecclesiology means understanding of the church. Every Christian must have a diverse understanding. Many Christians still understand the church as a place (a building of worship with all its equipment). Some understand the church as an institution or social organization. There is also a view that the Church prefers spiritual or inner aspects. In the case of the Church is defined as fellowship or community of people who believe in Christ, without too much care for the institutional and organizational order.[4] The church is often also interpreted to mean all Christians, regardless of prejudice, denomination, ethnicity, nationality or social status. Regarding the meaning of the Church is a believer, it means that the Church is not an organization but an organism.[5] As organisms the Church must experience growth. The problem of the growth of the Church today is being discussed and is being studied everywhere, in various denominations throughout the world. Church growth does not only focus on the large number of church members, the large amount of mission funds, the number of missionaries, or the large amount of mission funds, but also focuses on spiritual growth, so that people who are out of salvation truly repent and return truly repent and return to God; so that all nations become disciples of God; so that the church develops and grows into adulthood, can preach the gospel can build more churches.

Church growth is not a new mode or modern item, but a task that is very urgent and cannot be delayed. Judging from the existence of various pressures from this world, then if we do not quickly grow, we will lose a place to stand, the existence of the Church will get into trouble. Church growth is not only the existence of Christianity, it also determines the triumph or decline of Christianity. The church is fast growing, the existence of Christianity is getting stronger; The church is not growing, Christianity is certainly backward.

Church growth is influenced by several factors. With regard to the topic of factors that support the growth of the Church, Chris Marantika argues that: When examined closely, both from a biblical and historical standpoint, it is clear that the main factors causing a surge of rapid growth are factors: (1) Central Dynamics: (2) Servants of God: (3) Containers for implementation (Divine institutions); (4) Gospel News. If the four growths will be dynamic and bear fruit it will no doubt be dynamic and healthy fruitful.[6] So according to Chris Marantika one of the main factors causing the growth of the Church is the servant of God / servant of God himself. The Triune God does not work through a vacuum. He works through the means and servants of God who are right and of high quality. God's servant in general terms is called human resources.

Human resources, which is then abbreviated as HR, is the potential contained in human beings to realize their role as human beings who are human and transformative who are able to manage themselves and all the potential contained in nature towards the achievement of the welfare of life in a balanced and sustainable order. In everyday practical sense, HR is better understood as an integral part of the system formed by an organization. Human resources consist of employees who work based on their expertise and work in a field or department in accordance with their respective expertise.[7]

In terms of the function or importance of human resources Marihot Tua Effendi Hariandja argues that human resources (HR) is one very important factor in a company in addition to other factors such as capital. Therefore, HR must be managed well to increase the effectiveness and efficiency of the organization, as one of the functions in the company known as human resource management (HRM).[8] The above statement explains the definition and function of human resources in general.

In the world of service, God's servant or servant of God is also the most valuable asset in a ministry. Capital in the form of material and infrastructure will not be meaningful without the servants of God. Paul G. Caram argues that: "Statistics say that the average servant of God affects about 10,000 people while serving. This investigation includes the servants of God who serve in small cities as well, not only in big cities. Through relationships that he established when he served the blessing of marriage or funeral, through articles he wrote in the newspapers, through interviews on the radio, through speeches at graduations, prayers at dedication programs (children, homes, etc. others), hospital visits, or sermon tapes sent to relatives or friends, generally a servant of God reaches thousands of people. Power of Attorney and According to the author, the opinion of Paul G. Caram who highlights the influence of God's servants is logical. This will be proven if the person being investigated is an active servant of God and exists in many fields of service. From the content of his opinion, it is clear that the service of God or God's servants is something vital, which greatly influences the success or failure of a ministry.

Regarding the importance of human resources, Sonny Eli Zaluchu stated that: "The Church often places success through improving supporting facilities and infrastructure. The more stately buildings, the quantity of congregations continues to grow, more and more offering money is a significant empirical measure of success. This fact makes us forget that the quality aspects of human resources are neglected and not prioritized. We forget that humans are the most valuable asset in an organization as large as the Church. Church leaders in addition to running programs or doing hardware improvements, also have to send workers to seminars, trainings, read books, to empower their abilities at an effective level. "[10]

The author strongly agrees with Sonny Eli Zaluchu's expression. Because indeed what is often done by the Church only prioritizes revamping and procuring facilities and becoming a brand image of the success of the Church. It should be underlined, that the future of the Church, even the future of the nation will be largely determined by the availability of qualified human resources.

To be able to produce qualified human resources / servants of God, it is necessary to set a certain qualification standard in accordance with the truth of God's Word. In this connection, George W. Peters said some of the main characteristics of a servant of God whose life can be used by God to bring forth the growth of His Church.[11] First, He has accepted the call of the Lord Jesus Christ and remains faithful to follow God in any situation, despite his weaknesses and limitations, he will faithfully say, just like Peter "Lord, to whom shall we go?" (John 6:68) Second, he is a servant who voluntarily enters service to Christ and his Church, without ambition seeking material wealth and personal interests (Matt. 26: 57-62; 14: 25-33).
Third, he is a servant of God who experiences a deeper and deeper fellowship with God, so that he is not only able to convey His Word, but also able to explain the principles he teaches and radiate God from himself (I Pet. 2:9). Fourth, He is a servant of God who lives in the Spirit (Gal. 5:25; Eph. 5:18). Fifth, He is a servant of God who has set his priorities in life both in personal life and ministry (Matt. 6:33).

Sixth, He is the servant who receives and applies the ministry together as a team (Acts 3:1-5; 4:23-31).

Seventh, He is a servant who has the message of the Gospel of Salvation burning in his heart. God's pressure surged in the bosom of God's servant causing him to be unbearable in the proclamation of the Gospel of Salvation (Acts 4:19-20).

Eighth, He is a servant who is willing to sacrifice and is willing to suffer even death even for the preaching of the gospel in the Lord Jesus Christ who died even for the preaching of the gospel in the Lord Jesus Christ who died and rose to this world (Acts 4:12-31; 7:60). This was done joyfully (Phil. 4:4-9).

Ninth, He is a servant whose message comes from God's Word (I Tim. 4:2a), not from dogmeng or his experience. George W. Peter's statement above is a basic criterion that must be possessed by a servant / servant of God in addition to the other criteria. Determination of the criteria is intended to get qualified servants of God and in accordance with the needs of the existing field of service.

The Meaning of Waiters

Judging from the meaning of the word servant means people who serve, helpers, messengers. Deacon (Latin: Diaconus) is a role in the Christian Church that is generally associated with service in several different fields, according to theological and denominational traditions.

The word deacon is derived from a Greek word diakonia (service), diakonein (airport), and diakonos (waiter). In many traditions, the diaconate (office of deacon) is aoffice; clericalin other traditions, deacons are for lay people.

The word deacon comes from the Greek word diakonos (διάκονος), which is often translated as a waiter or more specifically a waiter in the table (English: waiter). In the Greek world, these deacons are seen as slave labor and low labor.

The Greek word dikononos can be used to mean: messenger, servant, house servant, deputy captain, attendant at religious ceremonies, and especially service at banquets. Its use in the NT also has several meanings: (a) In the general sense it is used to refer to the servant of a superior (Matt. 22:13) or the servant of one another (Mk 9:35; 10:43; Matt. 20:26). (b) In a more limited sense it is used to refer to every Christian as a servant of Christ (John 12:26; 2 Cor 11:23) or servant of God (2 Cor 6:3 and so on). (c) In a figurative sense it is used for human understanding which could be a devil servant or a servant of justice (2 Cor 11:14-15), servant of the gospel (Eph. 3:6-7; Col. 1:23), servant of sin (Gal. Gal. 2:17), servants who are circumcised (Rom. 15:8) or NT servants (2 Cor 3:6).

Therefore, selection in the recruitment of servants of God based on criteria that are in accordance with God's Word is not something incidental in certain periods. But it should be sustainable and will remain relevant today. This is because the Church will continue to need qualified servants of God. Servants of God who are able to overcome and provide solutions to the Church's internal and ecological problems so that the Church will experience growth.

Once the importance of the role of servants in the progress and success of a ministry, then it takes a selection in the provision of servants of God in a church or place of service. Lately looking for servants of God is getting harder and harder. The fewer people can be chosen and the more people who refuse to serve. And even if there were, certainly not a servant of God who lives to serve but to serve for life. In other words, someone who wants to be a servant hopes to earn a living from the place or church where he serves. So many offer themselves as servants of God with various demands for facilities, materials and infrastructure. Suharto Harjowinoto and Heru Susanto said that for a servant of God, it should not demand the church's tithe / contribution for his life but rather focus on the task of churching together with members of the congregation, while the congregation wisely looks at the needs of his family and his ministry life.[12]
This statement means that the part that must be done by the Lord's servant is to focus on his ministry. A sovereign God who will guarantee the lives of His servants. He was also able to move the church that His servants served as a channel of blessing for him. The mistake often made when choosing God's servant is to rely on one's own strength and wisdom and not to seek God's will. Very dangerous if in the end the people chosen to serve God are people who have no heart, or rather those who are not God chose.

The phenomenon that occurs in the field of service, the error that is in the selection of God's Servant is an element of intent. This occurs because of certain interests of the person or organization of the Church. For example, churches which prioritize intellectuals will tend to choose highly intellectual servants without regard to their character or spirituality. Churches that prioritize character will choose God's servants who are of good character even though they are less spiritual and broad-minded. Likewise, churches which prioritize spirituality will choose ministers who have good vertical relations even though horizontal relationships and theological understanding are not good.

There are even churches that need funding to grow and tend to choose God's servants who have a lot of money without regard to intellectual, spiritual and character qualities.

The selection of servants of God that only refers to one side, will make the problems faced in the ministry not resolved properly. The selection of services whose main purpose is to minimize problems and even solve problems and make services more advanced, on the contrary the problem becomes more complex and the service is destroyed.

Problem Identification

Selecting a problem is the first step of a research activity. Problems are part of a person's need to be solved. People wantMen to conduct research because he wants the problems he faces get answers. The problem search / selection activity begins with the selection of research topics. Armed with the topic, the work is long enough, namely to examine the sources of the problem with a view to finding and establishing problems related to the topic. This step in research is called problem identification.[13]

From the study of the problems found in the background of the problem, researchers can identify several problems: First, cultural and technological changes in addition to having a positive impact but also a negative impact on humans. Second, the church is needed to pay attention to the fundamental horizontal problems. Third, the church must grow if it wants to play a role. Fourth, one of the main factors in church growth is theHuman Resources / Servants of God Fifth. There needs to be a standardization of God's servant qualifications in order to produce servants who answer the challenges of the Age of

Conclusion

From the presentation of the theory about the meaning of deacons / servants of God, the task of deacons, it can be understood that the servants of God have a very large contribution to the growth and development of the Church. So it takes the right way in the procurement and provision of God's servants. But it is unfortunate that this has not been fully realized and addressed by God's Churches until now. Most Churches of God pay more attention to the physical buildings, facilities and infrastructure of the Church rather than thinking about how to get God's servants who can answer the needs of the congregation and the challenges of the times.

Even more alarming is the many Churches of God who procure servants of God who only look at the side that can increase the image and popularity of the Church. So often the Church is more concerned with intellectuals and skills without regard to character. This has become a gap problem in the Church and even divisions within the Church. Because of the reality that happens a lot in the field is what makes the writer moved to discuss and at the same time provide a solution. In order to finally emerge an awareness of the importance of the Servant of God and the movement for change that is leading to an increase both in the provision and provision of God's servants. Book of Acts is the second book written by Dr. Luke The contents of the book of Acts are about the coming and activities of the Holy Spirit as well as about the activities of the early Church. In chapters 6: 1-6, describes one of the problems that occur. One problem that can cause disintegration or division among the early church. But because of the excitement of the work of the Holy Spirit and the submission of the apostles to the leadership of the Holy Spirit finally obtained a very appropriate solution, which not only solved the existing problems but brought about an impact of growth both in quality and quantity. Specifically chapter 6: 3, explains the essence of the solution to the problem, namely the selection of 7 servants of God. Obviously Dr. Luke reveals the criteria of God's servant who can be the solution to the problems that occur.

His qualifications are well-known / well-known. This means that other people judge, witness and report the good things of the servant's personality, namely: First, have honesty. In this case, a servant of God is an honest person. Honest means not lying, not taking other people's property, not cheating, telling the way it is. Second, sincerity, clean heart and sincere / willing heart. Third, a servant of God must have integrity. Integrity is responsible and committed to commitment. Fourth, filled with spirit means life that is led, controlled, controlled and controlled by the Holy Spirit. The fullness of the Spirit will be expressed through the attitude of life in accordance with the fruits of the Spirit and the characteristics of people who live according to the Spirit:

First, the Holy life. Living holy means free from sin and positive thinking. Second, dare to preach the gospel. It means not being afraid in preaching the gospel, having a solid heart when facing challenges in preaching the gospel. Third, obedience to the Holy Spirit means to always submit, obey what is required. Full of wisdom. Wisdom means wisdom. Wisdom is different from intelligence. Wisdom comes from God. The attitudes reflected from the wise are: First, wise. Wise means being clever and careful in solving problems.
Second, being humble, which means not being arrogant, can accept suggestions and criticisms. Third, fair which means not taking sides. Fourth, moral, it means having good moral / living according to morals. These three qualifications for God's service became the standard for selecting deacons / servants of God in the early church / apostolic era. This qualification will also be a permanent and relevant reference for all time.
